Spaces for different activities

During the course of a day, a variety of activities take place in an office. Project work, individual work, phone calls, writing and various types of meetings are some examples where each activity demands a different degree of focus and supportive interior design. A well-planned solution is designed according to identified needs and working patterns, where the features, design and location of the interior facilitate, invite and support different types of work tasks.

Let yourself be inspired by different spaces and how they can be designed flexibly and sustainably for wellbeing, creativity and efficiency. We're here to help you, whatever your starting point – from needs analysis and interior design solution to delivery and follow-up.

Entrance

The entrance creates the first impression of an office and reflects the organisation's brand, image and values. The interior design solution here contributes to everyone feeling welcome and included. The space is easy to navigate with options for both privacy and socialising. Visitors and staff can sit down here and wait for a meeting, work for a short while or meet spontaneously.
